

10. PAINT OUTDOOR WALLS

(Image credit: Emily Minton Redfield. Studio credit Truss Interiors)

Yes, much like interior walls, you can create an accent wall for the outdoors too. Apart from mirrors, wall hangings, vertical greenery, and more, consider paints like in this project by Truss Interiors, to add a touch of charm to the outdoor wall decor.

Consider weatherproof paint, and choose tones that will complement the outdoor area. Look for undertones in the outdoors that might inform your palette. Are they warm beiges, browns, and rusts all around or cool grey, blue and black? Consider paint colors that will tie these fixed elements together in a harmonious way.

Also, think about your home's relationship to the street and the landscape around. If yours is a property that is set inside a road or is amid a cluster of large, towering trees, then you might want to choose a slightly lighter or brighter color so that the home stands out. Alternatively, a darker hue can make it appear to recede.